The Leadership Dance

Leading and Following on the Dance Floor and in the Work Place

Tuesday, March 28, 2006

Creekside Room • Check-in: 5:45 p.m. • Workshop: 6:00 to 8:30 p.m.

“To lead, one must follow.” - Lao Tzu

Have you ever wanted to learn how to swing dance? Did you know that learning to dance with a partner can help you become a better leader in all aspects of your life? The Leadership Dance is a workshop that will provide you with 25 tips on how to effectively lead others, both on and off the dance floor. You will learn the basics of swing dancing, and how to work collaboratively with a partner, both as a leader and as a follower. By applying dance principles to leadership, you will discover new ways to make work teams and collaborative partnerships more effective. The workshop will cover 5 key principles:

- Leading and Following
- Relating to Your Partner
- Relating to the Music
- Learning Steps
- Relating to Other Dancers

The best leaders know how to lead as well as follow; all participants will be asked to take on both leading and following roles. You will learn how to achieve your performance goals more effectively by becoming a better leader, follower and collaborator, and most importantly knowing when to take on which role. Bring your dance shoes, and come prepared to have fun!

Cost:

$10 advance registration. At the door, $5 will be refunded, so the actual cost to you will $5. The proceeds will be donated to DUCBA for club activities.
