One Book, One Marin Reception
Thursday April 18th, 5:30-6:30 pm

The Library will host the One Book, One Marin reception in the Reading Room Thursday, April 18th beginning at 5:30 pm for award winning author, Mary Roach in celebration of her book, Packing for Mars. On display through May are items from our University Librarian, Gary Gorka’s private collection of space memorabilia including some fascinating pieces and autographed photographs of Russian space exploration.
In Moonwalking with Einstein, journalist Joshua Foer skillfully weaves together a little about the science of how we remember, the history of how we learned to develop memory, musings about the usefulness of memory in an age when we have a world of information at our fingertips, the current state of memory competitions, and how he trained to win the US Memory Championship. Similar authors include Malcolm Gladwell, Mary Roach, Nicholas Carr, Oliver Sacks and Jonah Lehrer. If you want to read something specifically about the science of memory research, I also highly recommend Eric Kandel's book In Search of Memory. Joshua Foer does an excellent job in giving an engaging overview of memory from multiple angles and perspectives.
